THE NAVY CAN MEET ARAB TEST

By SEAYA SHAPIRO
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Although the Egyptian and Syrian combined navies are "impressively greater" than the craft available to Israel, the quality of her men and the standard of maintenance enable the Israel Navy to face any challenge the Arabs may offer in the Red Sea or the Mediterranean, Aluf Avraham Botzer, O.C. Navy, told correspondents yesterday.

He was speaking on the eve of "Navy Day," which is being marked today.

The Egyptian and Syrian fleets are believed to muster between them a total of 12 submarines, 25 missile boats, 25 torpedo boats, four destroyers and 40 other men-of-war.

In the past year, Aluf Botzer said, the navy has virtually stopped infiltration from the Mediterranean, and has maintained a fairly firm grip on infiltration from the Gulf of Suez and Elat. Dozens of crafts have been intercepted in infiltration attempts, intended largely as hit-and-run sabotage actions or to transport men and ammunition to the Gaza Strip.

"If hostilities resume," Aluf Botzer said, "the Navy will be able to tackle the enemy fleets at the pace and circumstances of our choice."

The backbone of the navy was its submarines and Saar-type missile boats armed with the Israeli-developed Gabriel sea-to-sea missile.

Speaking on Israel Radio last night, Aluf Botzer said that the Israel Navy had to avoid situations of "misunderstanding" with the Soviet Navy, and thus did not operate in the regions where they did.

Meir to defer naming of new Justice Minister

By ASHEE WALLFISH
Jerusalem Post Correspondent

Prime Minister Golda Meir is not expected to appoint immediately a successor to Justice Minister Ya'acov Shimshon Shapir, who resigned Sunday.

According to informed Cabinet sources, Mrs. Meir will herself assume the Justice Portfolio temporarily — if last-minute efforts to persuade Mr. Shapir to withdraw his resignation fail.

She will not act to select a successor until after her return from a conference of the Socialist International in Vienna, next month, the sources said.

The sources said that Mrs. Meir wants to permit tension in the Labour Party and in the public to subside before appointing a new Justice Minister.

The Premier and Finance Minister Eshkol Sapir yesterday continued to try to persuade Mr. Shapir to change his mind. The Labour Party Leadership Bureau also convened last night for the same purpose. Mr. Shapir was present at the meeting.

However, there was a general feeling that Mr. Shapir would not be moved, and one usually reliable Party source said the Bureau would just be "going through the motions."

Mr. Shapir's resignation becomes effective at 2 p.m. today, 48 hours after it was tendered.

Speculation on an ultimate successor to Mr. Shapir continued in the House of Representatives. Tel names mentioned included former Commerce Minister Haim Zadok, Attorney General Meir Shamgar, Tel Aviv District Court Judge Ze'ev Zeltner, and the Independent Liberals' Gideon Hausner. It was also suggested that Mrs. Meir may want to give the portfolio to Police Minister Shlomo Hillel or Commerce Minister Haim Bar-Lev, as an added portfolio. Some sources held that she might use the opportunity to find a Cabinet seat for the Ambassador to the U.S., Yitzhak Rabin.

The Prime Minister is expected to make an announcement on Mr. Shapir's resignation in the Knesset today. Mr. Shapir will take the rostrum after her to explain the grounds for his withdrawal.

The Gahal Opposition last night asked the Government to agree to debate the resignation — if it materialized. If the Government refused, Gahal warned, they would call for a debate on the Government to force a debate. One Alignment source said last night that the Government would probably agree.

Well-wishers call on Shapiro

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Although Mr. Shapiro had cancelled all his pre-arranged appointments, his telephone hardly stopped ringing yesterday, and all manner of friends and well-wishers called in person to try and persuade him to revoke his decision to resign.

Among the first callers was the Mayor of Jerusalem, Mr. Teddy Kolek. He recalled Mr. Shapiro's great contribution — as Chairman of the Ministerial Committee on Jerusalem — to the progress and development of the united Capital over the past five years. Mr. Shapir, as well as all his other callers, merely listened and thanked his guest.

According to his close advisers, his decision is final. (By law, Mr. Shapir has till today at two o'clock — 48 hours after his resignation — to revoke it.)

Other callers included the Justice Ministry Staff Committee, Mr. Yitzhak Tunk, head of the Bar Association and Mr. Haim Gvati, Minister of Agriculture. Telephone callers included the Mayor of Tel Aviv, Mr. Yehoshua Rabinowitz.

Sephardi Chief Rabbi Yitzhak Nissim, sent him a message saying: "Do not see the shades of mountains as mountains," but return to the post "which befitted you so well."

Resigning with Mr. Shapir will be his personal assistant, Mr. Uzi Sivan, who has also been acting as the Justice Ministry's spokesman. Mr. Sivan was in private legal practice before he joined the civil service, and he is considering returning to this field, although he says he has not yet finally decided.

There is no firm information about the intentions of the Ministry's Director-General, Mr. Zvi Terlo. He has refused to speak to newsmen, considering it unseemly for senior civil servants to do so in such situations.

It is usual for new ministers to appoint new directors-general when they take over, but since the Justice Portfolio may be given to one of the present ministers or remain with Mrs. Meir, Mr. Terlo might well stay on, at least for the time being.

Rabin row over Nixon subsidies

WASHINGTON (INA). — Lawrence O'Brien, national chairman of the Democratic Party, said Sunday that he could not believe that the ambassador of Israel would "become directly involved" in the American presidential elections.

O'Brien, appearing on the ABC television program "Issues and Answers" made the remark in response to a question on a story in the Sunday "Washington Post" which claimed that Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin had indicated preference for President Nixon in an interview Saturday on Israel Radio.

Ambassador Rabin repudiated the story yesterday and said his interview had been "misquoted" and taken "out of context" by the "Washington Post" correspondent, Yuval Elizur, in Jerusalem.

The question to O'Brien and his reply came in the closing minutes of the programme. Mr. Rabin was quoted as saying that President Nixon has been a good friend of Israel, that Israel should "remember this," not the word of the opposition.

O'Brien said, "I can't believe that an Ambassador representing a foreign power would become directly involved in a presidential election in any way."

The Democratic chairman said he did not know the text of the comments, "but off the top of my head let me just suggest that I can't believe there would be that kind of involvement in a campaign in this country."

In addition to indicating that Mr. Rabin had clearly expressed preference for Mr. Nixon in his interview, the "Post" article also quoted unnamed Israeli officials as suggesting that the envoy would be censured, perhaps by the Prime Minister.

Upon the appearance of the "Post" story, Mr. Rabin and his Embassy aides immediately issued

CHINA WARNS ON AIR STRIKES

TOKYO. — Communist China yesterday said the recent escalation of U.S. air strikes against North Vietnam, close to the Sino-Vietnamese borders, is threatening the security of China.

It charged that "these frenzied acts of aggression" of the U.S. are not only "new war crimes" against North Vietnam but also "grave provocations" against China.

In a Foreign Ministry statement, China said that "the Chinese Government and people express their resolute support" for the North Vietnamese. A statement issued last Saturday condemned the U.S. for further dispatching planes for raids against the Hanoi suburbs, Haiphong and other areas.

Last week, U.S. jets swept to within 20 miles of China and wrecked a big North Vietnamese railroad marshalling yard and highway bridge only 40 seconds flying time from the China-Vietnam border. The raids were reported the closest to the border since the 1965-68 U.S. bombing campaign against North Vietnam.

In Paris the U.S. yesterday indicated that it might soon end its five-week boycott of the Vietnam peace talks.

Chief U.S. negotiator William Foster returned to Paris and said that President Nixon was "intensely interested in arriving at some kind of negotiated settlement of the Vietnam problem."

"My return here at this time is an additional indication of my strong preference and hope that such a settlement can be achieved," he added.

In North Vietnam, U.S. planes picked off scores of railway cars stuck like "sitting ducks" on the battered tracks between Hanoi and the Chinese Border, the U.S. command reported.

South Vietnamese armoured columns and truckloads of supplies broke through yesterday to An Loc and all but lifted the siege of the provincial capital 95 kms. north of Saigon — the fourth major town to be liberated since the Communist offensive began on March 30.

A few snipers remained in the town and Highway 13 from Saigon was not considered "safe" but most of the North Vietnamese attackers were reported to have withdrawn to Cambodia and the remaining 7th and 9th Communist divisions were described as "decimated" or so badly cut up they lost their combat effectiveness. ARABS AND ANARCHISTS

BRITAIN protested vehemently yesterday against a fiery speech made by Libyan leader Colonel Muammar Gaddafi, in the course of which he said that Libya was sending arms, money and volunteers to the Irish Republican Army. In the past there was a tendency to brush off such declarations as merely famular bragging. This was usually the case when the threats were made against Israel and world Jewry.

Now, London has been forced to take them seriously since they involve a group fighting against Britain which has during the past three years caused many casualties among British and British troops in Northern Ireland. This latest outburst of Gaddafi's has come a few months after he nationalized the British Petroleum oil company and signed an agreement with the Soviet Union to help Libya sell the oil. Britain protested against that move in Moscow. It is unlikely that London will follow up these protests with any political measures, for fear of harming her position in the Arab world.

The key to the latest Gaddafi speech emerges quite clearly. Some of the Arab states have aligned themselves with anarchist and terrorist groups throughout the world. However, limited their military power — they have arms enough to bolster their terrorist arsenal. This aid has nothing to do with the Arab-Israeli conflict. It is also ironic that the Libyan ruler should accuse Britain of "handing Palestine over to the Jews in 1948." That was the last thought the British Mandatory administration intended or expected in 1948, when British forces withdrew from this country.

It is time, therefore, for some of the governments which tend to attribute their own problems with the Arabs to the degree of their support for or opposition to Israel, to study this view of certain Arab countries — groups within them, including Lebanon and Syria, Libya and Algeria, appear to have chosen to associate themselves with the Euzer-Melinkof group in Germany, the I.R.A. in Northern Ireland, the Tupamaros in Southern America, the Red Star Faction in Japan, terror groups in Turkey and Iran, and the Palestinian organizations.

They do so not mainly because they support the social or even the political doctrines guiding the anarchists, though individual Arabs may be so afflicted, but to embarrass and damage Western interests and cause Western uneasiness in many cases they are supporting Soviet and Chinese power, which will eventually hurt their own interests. But the long-cherished hatred for the West has blinded some of them into applauding and supporting any action that is anti-West, even if it includes mass murder such as was committed at Lod on May 30th.

They hope that by harming Western interests they will tend to loosen the ties between Israel and a number of Western countries. But their methods are becoming increasingly unattractive to the West. The terror groups save the Palestinians, are not fighting against Israel. They are seeking to destroy the fabric of their societies and governments and bring about what they term World Revolution. None of these organizations has given a satisfactory answer as to what would happen after that Revolution has taken place.

Meanwhile the world must wake up to the fact that it is not enough to fight the terrorists alone. Measures have to be taken against those who shelter them, extend financial aid and give them weapons. They have become a threat in Europe and America to international civil aviation and to established governments. Those who support them bear a terrible responsibility for the present wave of bloodshed and anarchy.

By his admission, Gaddafi has put Libya squarely behind those who are threatening stability. Verbal protests do not go far. More concrete sanctions will have to be devised so that nations will be able to protect themselves from mounting terror, treated as a form of sport.

Pilot strike threat causes U.N. dilemma

UNITED NATIONS (UPI). — U.N. Security Council members consulted yesterday on the demand by International Airline Pilots that the 15-nation body meet by Friday to take action against hijacking.

The problem, according to a well-placed Western diplomat, is that the Council members could not conceive of any action the U.N. could usefully take.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations sent a message to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim last week asking that the Council meet not later than June 16 to take necessary actions against hijacking and "in particular, enforcement measures against states offering sanctuary and harboring to prosecute hijackers and saboteurs."

Ola Forsberg of Finland, president of the pilots' group, said that if the U.N. failed to take

"effective action" his association planned a 24-hour world-wide stoppage of air services next Monday.

Diplomatic sources said that China has objected privately to any U.N. action against such incidents. The Peking regime contends that the Arabs are in a state of war with Israel and that the Council should not intervene, these sources said.

In view of that attitude, even if the Council could muster measures for U.N. enforcement of any action it might take, a Chinese veto could kill the move at the start.

A Cairo report says that the Arab Transport Workers' Federation yesterday declared support for international action to safeguard civil aviation against hijacking. The Middle East News Agency said the Federation was replying to a cable from the International Transport Worker's Federation in London,

OKAMOTO LIKELY TO BE TRIED BY MILITARY COURT

TEL AVIV. — The Japanese accused of the Lod Airport massacre, Kozo Okamoto, has not put in a formal request for a lawyer, a Japanese Embassy official told The Jerusalem Post.

"This is the first time that a Japanese citizen has been tried by a military court outside of Japan, and we have asked the Israeli authorities for more information on the procedure," the Embassy official said.

Though no official confirmation in available, police say this case will be heard by a military court. The choice of a military — instead of a criminal court — indicates, that Israel regards Okamoto as a bona fide terrorist, and not a simple criminal. Police sources explained that as a rule, terrorists are tried by a military court.

A military court can impose capital punishment for terror acts under the Emergency Defence Regulations. A criminal court cannot.

On Sunday, Ramle magistrate Zion Aluf remanded Okamoto until his trial.

It is understood that Okamoto's interrogation has been completed, and the file turned over to the State Attorney, who will make it available to the Judge Advocate-General.

The trial will be held as soon as possible. It is learned.

Magistrate Aluf on Sunday also extended the remand of the two women hijackers caught at Lod Airport after the Sabena plane they had taken over was liberated. It is learnt they will also be tried by a military court.

A Japanese diplomat said that Okamoto, 24, has been deprived even of the use of a knife and fork to thwart any suicide attempt.

Mr. Jun Matsufuji, a Japanese Embassy counsellor who has seen Okamoto in jail at least twice, said the prisoner was completely calm, asking only to be killed or allowed to commit suicide.

WHERE RICHMANN HELD
Okamoto is being held in the maximum security jail cell which housed Eichmann.

The prisoner has also been deprived of any clothing or equipment that might aid him in a suicide bid, Mr. Matsufuji said.

He sits in his cell barefoot, wearing a collar-less shirt, with no bed around his trousseau.

His food consists of pieces of meat inside a pita.

Mr. Matsufuji said: "I asked him what he felt about the Lod tragedy." At first he said that as a revolutionary soldier, he must make war, and that war must naturally involve women and children.

"But then I asked him what he felt as a human being and not as a revolutionary soldier. He kept silent but I saw his throat pulsing violently, as though showing some underlying emotion."

"Finally he told me: 'From my mouth I cannot say my feeling.'"

Mr. Matsufuji said Okamoto had expressed a wish to write his confessions. As far as he knew the Israeli authorities had agreed, but it was clear that the prisoner wanted to write an ideological apology.

Mr. Matsufuji quoted Okamoto as saying he and his two companions were trained somewhere in Lebanon together with at least two or three other Japanese.

One of these, Osamu Maruoka, left Lebanon before the three-man suicide squad, for Japan on an assassination mission against important personalities there, such as the Israeli Ambassador.

He confirmed that Okamoto had told his interrogators that there were plans to carry out further attacks in New York or Europe.

Okamoto had given details of the sites for further attacks, but police were not allowing publication of the details.

Okamoto was convinced that a new attack would be made somewhere soon, Mr. Matsufuji said.

According to observers the military court is highly unlikely to grant Okamoto's wish to be executed. Although emergency legislation inherited from the days of the British Mandate provides for the death penalty, judicial sources said the court would almost certainly not impose this sentence.

Police search all passengers and luggage.

Especially strict precautions are being enforced at Athens Airport, where armed soldiers in jeeps patrol the airport and guard all planes.

Meanwhile the German police have started investigating a possible tie-up between West German radical terrorists of the "Baader group" and Arab terrorist organizations.

In Bonn two members of the West German Bundestag asked the Government yesterday why it had not officially condemned the Lod attack.

The two, Juergen Wohlrabe, vice-chairman of the Israel German Parliamentary Friendship Group, and Erik Blumenfeld expressed surprise that the Federal Government has not taken an official stand on the issue.

In Copenhagen, Danish authorities were informed yesterday that a group belonging to the Japanese "Red Army" organization was planning an attack against an Israeli-bound plane at Copenhagen's airport. Armed guards were stationed along the tarmac as well as in the air terminal building from the early hours yesterday.

A report from Bern says that Osamu Maruoka, who is being sought by Interpol, as the fourth member of the Japanese murder gang, is probably no longer in Switzerland.

Planes from Europe arrived at Lod Airport an hour or two behind schedule. Passengers coming from Brussels and Paris told how Israeli-bound travellers had been set apart from the others and submitted to an even more thorough search.

Passengers embarking at Brussels had to give up their hand luggage, which they only got back on their arrival in Lod.

El Al passengers were told they had to be at the airport in Europe at least two hours before departure time. Even so, the stringent checks kept the planes on the ground an hour beyond their scheduled departure time. (INA, UPI)

The puzzling lull in Vietnam

SAIGON (ANS) — American and South Vietnamese officials have described the current slowdown in the Vietnam fighting as evidence of the success of massive bombardments and bombings, and of the U.S. blockade of North Vietnam. Some skeptics reckon that the Communists are merely biding their time, and that they will launch another offensive when they are prepared to do so, reports Asian News Service correspondent TON THAT THIEN.

The South Vietnamese and American authorities interpret the present lull as a sign of the North Vietnamese weakening. They cite captured documents telling about the drop in morale of the Communist troops resulting from air attacks on their bases. The documents also tell about North Vietnamese commanders pleading with Hanoi to seek a political end to the war because the objectives assigned to the commanders on the front — fighting on for another three months, and taking of towns like An Loc, Kontum and Hue — could not be accomplished. Government sources claim that on the An Loc front, 75 per cent of the Communist troops have been eliminated. On the Quang Tri front, in one particular case, only 10 men re-

Big four powers move to maintain rights in Berlin

By LESLIE COLIOTT
THE future rights of the Western allies and the Soviet Union in Berlin and Germany are to be redefined for the first time since World War II by the four victorious Powers of that war.
In an event overshadowed by the signing of the Berlin accord last weekend, the three western Foreign Ministers proposed new four-Power talks on their rights to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. The Soviet Union, which shares Western interests in having a permanent voice in German affairs, is expected to agree to formal discussions. They are likely to be held by the ambassadors of the four nations to Bonn and East Berlin, who hammered out the quadripartite pact on Berlin.
The Western allies have taken the initiative because of what their diplomats describe as "dynamic new inter-German negotiations" which are about to begin. East and West Germany are to meet shortly to start working on an agreement that will determine their relationship for years to come. The resulting treaty will open the way for the exchange of plenipotentiaries who will reside in the two German capitals.
Germany to U.N.
Such a treaty, which Bonn officials believe can be concluded later this year, will open the way for admission of both Germanys to the U.N. by next year. And this is where the allies begin to get concerned.
Although the people of divided Berlin will be represented in the U.N. by East and West Germany, West Berlin remains under Western occupation, while the four Powers have unlimited access to the entire city. These remnants of quadripartite rule, the allies say, will have to be reaffirmed before they will approve U.N. membership for both Germanys.
Similarly, the armed forces of the Western allies in Berlin have special access rights to the city over the Helmsdorf-Berlin autobahn that cuts through East Germany. Their troop movements and supplies are subject only to checks by the Soviet Union. Western air traffic to Berlin uses three air corridors cutting across East Germany. Soviet and Western air controllers oversee the corridors, which may not be used by East German aircraft. There are other rights reserved to the victorious Powers and the Western allies insist they are not about to give them up until a peace treaty has been signed with a united Germany.
There is still another reason why the West is so interested in maintaining its prerogatives in Germany. West German recognition of the German Democratic Republic and its subsequent membership of the U.N. will certainly lead to diplomatic relations between Nato countries and the G.D.R. The Western allies would not be in a position to withhold recognition for long.
Embassies in east
In fact, allied diplomats in Berlin are predicting that within the next few years they will begin construction at their pre-war embassy sites on the eastern side of the Brandenburg Gate. Future diplomatic relations with the G.D.R., however, entail an acknowledgement of East Berlin as the capital of the country, a potentially fatal blow to four-Power rights in Berlin that the allies are now seeking to prevent.
There are strong reasons for the Russians to be vitally interested in continued special rights for the four Powers in Berlin and responsibilities for all of Germany.
The most important is that it guarantees them a future say in German affairs going even beyond their treaty with the German Democratic Republic on the stationing of Soviet forces there. Even that agreement speaks of Soviet forces "in Germany," indicating that no matter what the Germans may call themselves, the Soviet Union does not want to relinquish a say in their separate or united course.
A candid Soviet diplomat in Berlin remarked a few years ago that the "German problem is solved as long as Germany is divided. The four Powers here know this and will want to continue their presence in Berlin."

HIRED PFLP ASSASSIN IS STILL IN BRITISH PRISON

LONDON — Three years before the P.F.L.P.'s Japanese assassins carried out the slaughter at Lod an English mercenary was planning to blow up an El Al plane for a fee of $30,000. EDWIN BOTH writes how former British Army Captain Trevor Owen Williams contacted the Arab terrorists with the help of the Egyptian Embassy in London.

THE public expression of joy by Egypt's Prime Minister Anwar Sadat over the killing of 27 civilians and the wounding of 80 others by Japanese assassins at Lod airport was not surprising to anyone who knew about a very significant trial held in Oxford in 1970. At this trial, it was revealed that diplomats in London's Egyptian Embassy had arranged the association between the first known non-Arab in the employ of the Arab terrorist movement, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which organized the Lod massacre.

Sadat's words — "Three men with machineguns did what they have done. Where then was Israel might? Where then was the power the imperialists claimed we could not defeat?" — must be taken seriously in the light of the Oxford trial, which proved not only the Egyptian Embassy's part in the hiring of a British civilian as a potential mass murderer for the Arab terrorists, but also the use by Britain of "Crown Privilege" to protect the Embassy.

A former British army captain, Trevor Owen Williams, who had a collection of anti-Jewish books and pamphlets at his home, attempted two burglaries with a professional burglar named Hannan to get money for the salvaging of his bankrupt, debt-ridden one-man business. When these burglaries were unsuccessful, Williams decided he could make big money as a professional killer for the Arabs.

Williams wanted the best possible relations with Cairo. Some member of Parliament tried to ask questions about the Egyptian Embassy's part in the affair, but the Labour government refused to answer.

Williams was sentenced to 10 years' jail. (At a dinner in Oxford University immediately after the trial, the very experienced High Court judge said: "I have never seen such a totally immoral man.")
Probably because Williams was only a hired assassin who had not succeeded, and had revealed a good deal of information after his capture to get his sentence reduced, the Popular Front did not demand his release together with terrorist Lella Khaled, held in Britain during the mass hijackings half a year after Williams' trial.

$30,000 for first job

Deciding that a team of two might be more acceptable than only one man, he took Hannan to the Egyptian Embassy in London. Two diplomats — one of them very senior — arranged for their flight from London to Cairo and then to Amman where the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine hired them as paid assassins.

Williams was instructed to put a time bomb into an El Al Boeing airliner leaving from London Airport. At that time, El Al and other airlines still had no thorough baggage-examinations and it was possible to put baggage into an airliner without flying as a passenger. For putting the time bomb in an El Al plane "as first proof of his efficiency and good faith," Williams hoped to get $30,000 and further "contracts."

Williams and Hannan returned to London with a very powerful time bomb which the Popular Front had given Williams in Amman. But Hannan was a thief and not an assassin. Immediately after their return, Hannan went to the police with his story. The police promised him that "in the public interest," he would not be prosecuted for the burglaries he had committed with Williams.
Police found the bomb in Williams' home. His story about the flight to

Privilege for Egyptians

At the trial in Oxford, the embassy, the countries and the airline were officially identified for the first time. But when Williams' defence attorney tried to question the police inspector who had investigated the case, he was interrupted by the prosecutor before he could finish his question.

Formally acting as the Crown's representative, the prosecutor demanded on behalf of the Crown (meaning the British Government) that everything concerning the Egyptian Embassy or its diplomats should be covered by "Crown Privilege." The judge had to agree.
This meant that no questions could be asked during that trial about the part played by the Egyptian Embassy in the hiring of a foreign assassin by the P.F.L.P. At that time Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labour government was in its last weeks of power, and it

Ben-Horin cautions Bonn on Arab ties

By BRIAN AETHUR
Jerusalem Post Correspondent
BONN — Israel's Ambassador to Bonn on Sunday cautioned Western Europe against assuming it could reduce or eliminate Soviet influence in the Middle East by strengthening the West's presence in the region. Elishah Ben-Horin, in an interview prepared for the Saarland State Radio, said Russia had certainly not gone to Egypt "just for a weekend visit."
The Israel envoy's remarks came after West Germany established diplomatic relations with Cairo last week, but he said he was thinking generally with regard to West Europe. Noting that Bonn's improved relations with the Arab world would probably increase German cultural and economic presence there, Mr. Ben-Horin added: "Moscow won't be particularly disturbed if Egypt and the other Arabs get Western butter along with Russian guns."

Russia, China 'cutting aid to Hanoi'

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. officials are citing intercepted cables from Hanoi to its diplomats abroad complaining that, despite trips by North Vietnamese leaders to Moscow and Peking, the communist giants have not given nearly as much aid as they had been asked for. "Newsweek" reported this on Sunday in an article titled "where are Hanoi's friends now?"
The internationally-circulated news magazine went on the say: "As many U.S. officials see it, this foot-dragging is the result of a new geopolitical pragmatism in Moscow and Peking. For their part, the Chinese were reportedly upset with Hanoi for ignoring their warning against launching an all-out offensive before the U.S. withdrew from Vietnam."
According to this theory, President Nixon told Chinese Premier Chou En-lai that only when the problem of Vietnam was out of the way could the U.S. consider withdrawing its forces from Taiwan, as China scholar A. Doak Barnett observes: "It appears at the moment that Peking is putting a higher priority on U.S.-Chinese relations than on the outcome in Indochina."
"As for the Soviets, they too seemed to be acting on the basis of strategic self-interest rather than ideological allegiance. Playing on that theme, President Nixon argued in his Moscow meetings that, in the long run, geography dictated that the Chinese, not the Soviets, would inevitably win paramount influence in Hanoi."
"But even if Moscow and Peking were suddenly overcome by ideological considerations and decided to rush to Hanoi's aid, U.S. officials contend that they would have a hard time coordinating their efforts. So far this certainly seems to be the case. Both nations have blamed the other for letting Hanoi down, and one knowledgeable diplomat reports that, in addition to delaying Soviet ships, Peking has flatly refused to grant the Russians permission to fly transports over China on the way to Hanoi," wrote "Newsweek."

NEW AMERICAN REVOLUTION

THE DREAM IS STILL ALIVE

THE 1960s were years of turmoil in the U.S. Racial violence rocked her cities. Political assassination became an awful fact of public life. Crime continued to rise while drug addiction became a national problem. An unending, confusing war in Vietnam brought chaos to university campuses and divided the nation as no issue had since the Civil War. And a feeling of malaise and discontent gripped what had been an optimistic and self-confident people. To many observers, the U.S. was blowing up from within, destroying herself as no external enemy ever could.

America, however, has always been a land of great contrasts, and the decade of the '60s was also a time of social progress, cultural innovation and technological breakthrough. Charles A. Reich, and Jean-Francois Revel (pen-name of a distinguished commentator for the French "L'Express") are two observers who see the '60s as a creative, innovative and revolutionary period for America.

Reich begins his book with a startling statement:

"There is a revolution coming. It will not be like revolutions of the past. It will originate with the individual and with culture, and it will change the political structure only as its final act. It will not require violence to succeed, and it cannot be successfully resisted by violence. It is now spreading with amazing rapidity, and already our laws, institutions and social structure are changing in consequence. It promises a higher reason, a more humane community and a new and liberated individual. Its ultimate creation will be a new and enduring wholeness and beauty - a renewed relationship of man to himself, to other men, to society, to nature and to the land."

This revolution is called "Consciousness III." Its shock troops are the young people of America, for it is they who will spread the revolution to the rest of American society. They will do this, according to Reich, by living their own life and by setting an example for others - nothing more and nothing less. His formula is simple:

"Resist the state when you must; avoid it when you can; but listen to music, dance, seek out nature, laugh, be happy, be beautiful, help others whenever you can, work for them as best you can, take them in, the old and the bitter, as well as the young, live fully in each moment, love and cherish each other, love and cherish yourselves, stay together."

By following these instructions, the young will create the climate necessary for the success of the revolution. Reich points to Bob Dylan as the best example of his method in action. Dylan "did what he wanted to do, lived his own life and incidentally changed the world." In other words, all that is necessary to bring about revolutionary change in America is for people to do their own thing.

Reich is optimistic about the success of this revolution in the U.S. because the advanced state of American technology has freed her citizens to pursue non-material goals and because "nothing can stop the power of consciousness." To support his contentions, he points to the growth of rock music, underground newspapers, free schools and long hair as evidence that this revolution has already made inroads into the larger society.

Given his belief in the mission and revolutionary character of youth culture, it seems natural that the symbols Reich most associates with this wave of the future are Woodstock, the Y-sign and the expression "Oh wow!"

Paeon to the young

This latter exclamation describes my feelings after reading Reich's book, for the utopian predictions made by Reich tend to leave one breathless. Despite the exuberant claims made for it by its boosters, "The Greening of America" appears to be more a paeon to the young than a tract for revolution. Reich's optimistic and hopeful view of the new generation of Americans and their impact on the world probably results from his having spent too much time in the frenetic atmosphere of the college campus. He himself admits that much of the book "was written in the Stiles-Morse dining hall at Yale" (where he teaches law), hardly the ideal spot from which to contemplate a revolution. For that matter, it is questionable whether the dining halls of any American university provide the perspective necessary to make a judgment about radical change in American society.

Although "The Greening of America" is impressive for its lucidity and sweep (ranging across economics, history, law, sociology, psychology), the evidence Reich marshals to support his generalizations is frequently superficial. I seriously doubt whether long hair and beards are valid indicators of revolutionary change.

Furthermore, in glorifying the young generation for their creativity, freedom, and their rediscovery of community, Reich conveniently overlooks a darker side to the picture. Charles Manson and his followers were members of this same generation.

The history of America shows that despite the optimistic claims made about each new generation of radicals the vast majority of them join the establishment, move to the suburbs and become part of the status quo. A recent study of the leaders of the Berkeley Free Speech Movement of 1964 bears this out. Although Reich's revolution will most likely go to the way of other utopian schemes of the past, "The Greening of America" makes for stimulating reading all the same.

"WITHOUT MARK OR JESUS" also deals with revolution and its manifestations in the U.S. Revel argues that the only revolutions worthy of the name involve total remodelling of society. Judged by this criterion most revolutions are mere coups d'etat. According to Revel, there has been to date only one real revolution, which began in 1715 with the death of Louis XIV and ended at some indeterminate point in the 19th century. This was the First Revolution. Revel feels that the Second Revolution cannot originate in Western Europe, in the Third World, or in the Communist countries, but only in the U.S. "It is only there that it can happen." Like Reich, he says that this revolution has already begun. But "whether or not this revolution spreads to the rest of the world depends on whether or not it succeeds first in America."

Revel sees revolution as being impossible in Western Europe because the Left is hopelessly divided, conservative and backward-looking. Revolution is also impossible in the Third World because underdeveloped societies cannot marshal the resources necessary for any drastic change, and those societies that have the resources cannot utilize them effectively because they lack sufficient leadership and know-how. The Communist world is also unlikely ground for revolution because almost every country is in the hands of an oligarchy or autocracy. This leaves the U.S. though Revel concedes that the revolution might fall there. Nevertheless, he presents a good deal of evidence to show that it is at least under way. He lists five areas which must be revolutionized simultaneously in order for there to be a true revolution: politics; technology; science; culture; values and standards; and a revolution in international and territorial relations. The U.S., he maintains, is the only place where these revolutions are in progress. More importantly, from America has come the sole revolutionary invention which can be described as truly original: "the complex of new oppositional phenomena designated by the term 'dissent.'"

He goes on to say that dissent in America - student strikes, sit-ins, the Black revolutionary movement, Women's Liberation - have created a state of tension in which revolution is possible. He concludes by saying that the revolution in America offers the only possible escape for mankind today: the acceptance of technological civilization as a means not an end, and the development of the ability to shape that civilization without annihilating it.

Misleading impressions

Revel wrote his impressions of the U.S. after a six-week visit in 1969. It is questionable whether six weeks in any foreign country provides enough insight to generalize in the manner he does. Although he has perceived a great deal, some of his impressions strike me as ludicrous, as for example, his assertion that in 1967 no fewer than 300,000 of San Francisco's 750,000 citizens were hippies. He also falls into the trap of presenting individual and controversial opinions as if they were generally accepted truths. His statement that "the General Electric strike was considered one of the most significant social movements in America since 1930" should come as quite a surprise to most American historians and political analysts. And his visual impressions often mislead him. On the basis of having seen Spanish and Chinese signs in California airports, he reports on the striking linguistic pluralism of the U.S. This contention would certainly surprise a good many Chicanos and Chinese.

Viewed as a whole, Revel's picture tends to be too rosy and too superficial. Despite its faults, however, "Without Mark or Jesus" does contain some truths about America. Despite problems and conflicts, in few countries of the world is there as much freedom for the individual to develop to his fullest capacity. Europeans may talk of repressive, oppressive, reactionary America, but America never produced a Hitler, Stalin or Mussolini. The U.S. is frequently accused of racism, but the recent reaction of civilized countries such as France, England and Switzerland to North African, Jamaican, or Senegalese minorities in their midst and the furious reaction of a number of Swedes because the U.S. sent a Black as Ambassador to Stockholm, strains their own credibility. And despite the violence, there is a greater acceptance of racial integration by Americans today than there was 10 years ago.

With regard to Europeans charging that America is anti-Semitic, Revel's reaction is justified:

"There are presently six million Jews in America. Why are they there? Because they or their parents or grandparents were chased out of Europe by persecutions, or by pogroms at the beginning of the century in Russia, and in Hungary, Romania and Poland. They are in America because in Europe we had Hitler, and the racial laws of Vichy France, and roundups of Jews. . . . Barbarous, bloody, fanatic, narrow, repressive Europe. Europe which had always practised anti-Semitism in all its forms, from subtle harassment to planned genocide."

The 1960s were a trying time for America; a time when numbers of her citizens lost faith in their nation and themselves. The popularity of these books and the rapidity with which they made the best seller lists indicates that many Americans were eager for some sort of hope, some reassurance, that the American dream was not dead. If one can believe these authors, not only is the dream not dead but the future of America promises to be even greater than her past. Recent events have again thrown these predictions into doubt. One would like to hope, however, that from the turmoil and crises a better society will still emerge.

It was not as close a finish as this photograph suggests, when Graham Hill and Henri Pescarolo in their Matra (No. 15) won the 24-hour Le Mans race by 10 laps on Sunday. (AP radiophoto)

Matra's Le Mans race win marred by Bonnier's death

THE death of veteran Swedish driver Joakim (Jo) Bonnier threw a sad shadow across a double victory by the French Matra — Simca in the 40th Le Mans 24-hour sports car endurance race Sunday.

Bonnier, 42, died just after dawn. His Lola hit the back of a slower Ferrari and catapulted over a barrier into a pine wood at 180 mph (289 kph). It disintegrated into a thousand pieces and Bonnier died instantly, doctors said.

France's Henri Pescarolo and Britain's Graham Hill shared the winning car which covered 343 laps of the 8.4 mile (13.6 km) circuit at an average speed of 185.4 kph (121.4 mph).

More than 250,000 people saw the winning Matras cross the finishing line at 4 p.m. The second car, driven by Frenchmen Francois Covert and New Zealander Howden Ganley, was 10 laps behind the winner.

It was the first French victory in 22 years, but the light blue V12 Matras were robbed of a clean sweep when a third Matra broke down with gear box trouble 90 minutes before the end.

BOXING

WORLD Welterweight Champion Jose "Mantegulla" Napoles retained his title by defeating challenger Adolph Pruitt of Mississippi by a technical knockout halfway through the second round of their fight in Monterrey, Mexico, Saturday.

Napoles, a Cuban-born naturalized Mexican citizen, began to batter Pruitt fiercely in the second half of the first round. Napoles kept up his assault with hard blows to the head and body of Pruitt, who simply ran out of steam.

At one point, in the second round, Pruitt almost embraced Napoles, leaning on him, unable to fight. Napoles managed to keep the challenger against the ropes much of the time during his attack.

CRICKET

ENGLAND got a stranglehold over Australia in the first cricket test match at Old Trafford Saturday and built up a lead of 243 runs with seven of their second innings wickets in hand.

John Snow and Geoff Arnold, the pace men, swung the ball through the air and shot Australia out for 142.

The last five wickets went down for 13 runs. Snow finished with four wickets for 41 and Arnold with 4 for 62.

England, with a first innings lead of 107, then made 136 for 3 before close of play.

Geoff Boycott and John Edrich enjoyed an opening partnership of 60, with Boycott doing most of the scoring. He tamed Dennis Lillee and David Colley, the Australian fast bowlers, and made strokes freely on the outside.

However, yesterday, Australia hit back and dismissed England for 234, the last four England wickets crashing in six balls.

Australia were left with the formidable task of making 342 to win. Rain freshened the pitch before the tourists could start their second innings.

Fast bowler Dennis Lillee destroyed the England tail with three wickets in four balls after taking the new ball at 234 for six and Greg Chappell finished it off by bowling top scorer Tony Greig, who played another fine innings of 62 (six fours) for which he stayed two and a half hours.

Lillee, who ended with his best test figures of 6 for 66, took six for 36 yesterday in 16 overs. He showed how well he had learned the lesson giving him by England's John Snow and Geoff Arnold.

Rodney Marsh took five catches behind the wicket.

TRACK

PETER Stewart, 26-year-old Birmingham engineer, ran the fastest mile in the world this year at Crystal Palace and then disclosed that a spine injury almost ruled him out of athletics.

Stewart showed he is Britain's best hope for the Olympic 1,500 metres in Munich as he raced to the all-comers best of 3 mins. 55.3 secs. in retaining his Emsley Carr trophy.

He led the first five across the line inside the four minute barrier. Stewart slashed the seven-year-old record of Alan Simpson by two fifths of a second and he also set up the fastest 1,500 metres time in the world this year in doing so at 3 mins. 30.4 secs.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, Jim Ryun showed that he was back after an off-and-on year by winning the mile in 3:57.3 big George Woods upset Al Feurbach and Randy Matson in the shotput with his second 70-foot (21.34) metre throw within a week at the Vons classic track meet on Friday night.

Running the same coliseum track where he turned in a dismal 4:19.2 mile on March 4, Ryun whipped a field that included Tom Von Ruden and NCAA champion Dave Wottle, turning a 54-second final quartle.

BASEBALL

THE Pittsburgh Pirates moved back within one-half game of the front-running New York Mets in the National League East Sunday, beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-5 while the Mets were bowing 4-2 to the Houston Astros.

Robert Clemente slugged a tie-breaking two-run home run in the seventh inning, then singled home another run in the ninth to lead the Pirates to their eighth victory in nine games and 21st in the last 26.

Cesar Cedeno drove in three runs for the Astros, two of them with a homer in a decisive three-run seventh inning, as the Mets lost their fifth game in the last seven. Duffy Dyer hit a home run for New York.

The Cincinnati Reds, widening their National League West lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers to 1 1/2 games, battered four Montreal Expos hurlers for 16 hits en route to an 11-1 romp. Gary Nolan tossed a three-hitter with the Expos' lone run coming on Ken Singleton's homer.

In a battle of American League leaders, Bill Freehan belted a ninth-inning home run as the Detroit Tigers, tops in the East, defeated the West's front-running Oakland A's 3-2.

Dick Drago pitched a five-hitter and seventh-inning singles by Lou Piniella, John Mayberry and Amos Otis gave him the only run he needed as Kansas City's Royals edged the New York Yankees 1-0.

Broadcasting discussed at Cabinet

Jerusalem Post Reporter
THE Cabinet on Sunday approved the IL66.85m. budget of the Broadcasting Authority for the 1972/73 financial year, and authorized Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir to table the budget in the Knesset Finance Committee which also has to give it statutory approval.

Apart from the budget figures, the Cabinet also devoted its two-hour debate to a report on the problems of the Authority, and the suggested solutions to them, drafted by the previous Management Committee of the Authority.

Although some Ministers had a good word to say for the high professional standards of the radio, and to a lesser degree of television, most speakers followed chairman Walter Eytan's preliminary survey with a good deal of criticism of both media.

Complaints aired by the Ministers included the following:
• Why did the radio's weekly newsreel present Prof. Arnold Toynbee, and his views on the outcome of the Six Day War, last Saturday?

• Why did four successive radio bulletins feature an alert at Lod Airport in full detail a week ago?

• Why do television news programmes demonstrate such a notable lack of supervision from above?

• Why do Friday night TV shows have to feature foreign entertainment material?

• Why does news coverage on both media often give one side of a question without the other?

• Why do the Arab-language programmes on both media contain so much entertainment, and so little information?

Ministers, by and large, opposed the idea of advertising on TV. Some of them opposed the opening of a second TV channel. Authority officials will comment on the Ministers' criticisms and suggestions at some future Cabinet session.

EX-CON FINED FOR TRESPASS

SAPAD. — The Magistrates Court here on Sunday fined ex-convict and escape artist Nahman Farfuk IL50 for criminal trespass. The prosecution dropped its charges of theft of fruit and possession of stolen goods after Farfuk confessed to trespassing illegally in a fruit grove belonging to Mr. N. Solomon, of Rosh Pina.

Where we will get to, if public pressure leads to resignations?

Reservations on start of Mart talks

By DAVID KRIVINE
THE Common Market's decision to open new trade negotiations with Spain and Israel — and its resolution to strive for a free-trade area in the Mediterranean — are treated with some caution and reserve in Israeli circles.

Information now received in Jerusalem indicates that the Commission has asked the Permanent Representatives of the Six to prepare a mandate for opening talks with Spain and Israel, which should take account of the impact on their trade of the coming entry of four more powers into the Europarmt.

Israelis feel that this vaguely-worded statement may, if anything, slow down the solution of an urgent problem — what is to happen on January 1, when Britain, Ireland, Norway and Denmark adapt their agricultural tariffs to the European standard (industrial tariffs will be modified 12 months later). Israel has long been pressing for some correction in the overall tariff facing it.

Concerning the free-trade proposal, the French delegation originally sponsored a motion that this subject also be taken up only with Spain and Israel. It is likely that the French want Spain in. But other member-states are put off by Franco's Fascist antecedents, and their support can be garnered more easily if the package includes Israel too. The Dutch proposed that the free-trade opportunity be open to all Mediterranean countries — all of which have some kind of negotiations underway with the Common Market.

Israel's current trade agreement with the E.E.C. expires in October, 1975. Negotiations are supposed to start 18 months before that date, with a view to achieving free trade eventually. Israeli economists are concerned with the pace of progress and fear anything that might slow things down while new formulae are conjured up.

MORE ON SYPHOLUX

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — In her report on Sypholux (May 28), Martha Meisels states: "There is only one case on record, and that a recent one, of a Sypholux exploding."

For the sake of accuracy, we would like to state that about 15 years ago, there was a fatal case caused by the explosion of a Sypholux bottle, for which we paid compensation under the liability policy of Messrs. Sypholux.

The Dominion Insurance Company Ltd.

Tel Aviv May 26.

Sypholux replies:

The members of the management who dealt with this case are no longer living. To the best of the current management's knowledge the accident involved an old-type Sypholux bottle, manufactured for the company by an outside factory and subsequently recalled as unsuitable. Moreover, the bottle did not explode but fell off a table and split. The victim, an elderly man, died as an indirect result of shock and not as a direct result of physical injuries from the breaking bottle. The company doubts if any bottles of this old model can still be in use and newer models are constructed so as to prevent such occurrences.

FORECASTS FOR HAIFA

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — With reference to your report on temperature forecasts for Haifa (May 15), I would like to make the following remarks. These forecasts are prepared on the basis of weather stations in the vicinity of Haifa, taking into account a significant degree of variability between the lower part of Haifa, the Hadar and the higher areas of the Carmel.

There is a definite requirement for actual temperature readings in order to forecast temperatures. We therefore regret that, for reasons beyond our control, the important station at Haifa Port was inactivated about a year ago and that no substitute could be found until now.

CONFITURE—NOT JAM

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, — In your issue of May 30, there is a small article concerning the theft of IL2,500 from the Beit Yitzhak plant. The money was not stolen from a tin can as mentioned in the article. It had been in a cash box. Moreover Beit Yitzhak do not make "jam." They make confiture — and confiture is better than jam.

Trade fair exhibitors can't leave

TEL AVIV — An injunction preventing the departure from Israel of three South American merchants who took part in the "Modern Living" trade fair was issued Friday night by District Court Judge Max Czernobelsky (from his home) at the request of the Latin American Immigrants' Association.

According to the Association, the three merchants made a deal with it prior to coming here, asking it to deposit IL25,000 with the Customs as a guarantee that the merchants would pay the duties on merchandise they brought into Israel.

The merchants — Gregorio Luis Aptekman of Argentina, Ricardo Ernesto Aldas Fardo of Chile, and Ricardo Gonzalez Olate of Mexico promised in exchange to deposit 70 per cent of their daily gross in the Association's bank account.

However, the Association claims, it found out Friday evening that the merchants intended leaving Israel with a suitcase full of valuable silver art objects, while they had deposited only a small amount to its credit, and it stands to lose some IL19,000.

Kennan changes view on U.S.-Soviet relations

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI). — TWENTY-five years after his celebrated call to contain Soviet expansionism, former U.S. Ambassador George F. Kennan has revised his view of Soviet-American relations and now finds hope for cooperation rather than unremitting antagonism.

"World revolution" has simply faded out of the picture as a concrete aim of Soviet foreign policy," Mr. Kennan writes in the current issue of the journal "Foreign Policy."

"In general, the situation of the Soviet Union is such that were it not for the dangerous nuclear and naval rivalry, the outside world and particularly the U.S. would have little more to fear from Russia today than it did in 1910," he writes.

Kennan adds that if it becomes possible to reduce the military establishments of the U.S. and the Soviet Union, "then there is no reason why the Soviet Union should be considered a serious threat to American security."

Kennan, head of the State Department's policy planning staff in 1947, caused a considerable stir when he published an article — under the pseudonym "Mr. X" — in the prestigious quarterly "Foreign Affairs," calling for containment of Soviet power.

In that article he declared: "It is clear that the main element of any U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union must be that of a long-term, patient but firm and vigilant containment of Russian expansive tendencies."

His article later was widely cited as articulating the philosophical underpinnings of the subsequent American policy of countering Soviet Communism through the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, Nato, military assistance and defence treaties.

Kennan served briefly as U.S. Ambassador to Moscow in 1952 before retiring from diplomatic service.

Kennan bases his current re-evaluation of Soviet aims on fundamental changes which have occurred in the last quarter-century, which in some measure he had hoped might occur. As Kennan sees it, the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute has weakened Soviet power, the international Communist movement has become fragmented, and Soviet domination of Eastern Europe is marred by instability. "I think there has been a very considerable melioring of Soviet power," he adds.

Kennan's reassessment was prepared in advance of President Nixon's summit meetings with Soviet leaders in Moscow. But on the basis of his intimate knowledge of the Soviet Government, Kennan warned that it was unlikely that Soviet-American relations would ever become truly close.

"We should keep in communication with them — constantly — concerning the situation in the Middle East, with a view to avoiding misunderstandings. Beyond that, there is not much we can do," he writes.

Gaza police veteran promoted

Jerusalem Post Reporter

GAZA. — The longest-serving local police officer in the Gaza Strip, Yusef Abdel Esadi Marhana, was promoted to the rank of chief inspector (pakad) in a ceremony here on Sunday attended by senior police and military officers.

Pakad Marhana, who was born in 1924 and joined the British Mandatory Police in 1941, was given his two stars by the Gaza District Police Commander, Sgan-Nitzav Yitzhak Yahav.

Yesterday a group of 44 Gaza police recruits began a three-month training course here, the second Israel held in the Strip.

Parent sued for truancy child

OR-YEHUDA. — The Ministry of Education has filed suit in Magistrates Court here against a man who, it claims, has failed to send his seven-year-old son to school, as required by law.

The man, Mordechai Yosef, through his attorney, told the court yesterday that according to the law the authorities must warn the parent to send the child to school before suing. Moreover, he claimed, he sent his child to school — but the teachers kept sending him back home.

Druse judge gives salary for defence

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — Sheikh Nur Edin Halabi, one of the three Druse religious court judges, on Sunday rejected a Defence Ministry offer to release him from his undertaking to denounce his salary to the defence establishment for the rest of his life. His monthly salary amounts to IL2,000.

The Sheikh made the vow when he was elected to office about two years ago, and since then has regularly sent his monthly pay packet, including expenses, to the ministry, receiving a receipt and a letter of thanks in return each time.

Recently he received a proposal whereby the Defence Ministry would send him a personal letter releasing him from his vow. On Sunday he angrily told this reporter that he would never go back on his vow, even if his donations forced him to live frugally.

Philippine private war leaves 17 dead

MANILA (AP). — Seventeen persons were killed and two others wounded in two gunbattles between two "private armies" — the Christian "Ilagas" or rats and the Moslem "Barracudas" — in Zamboanga Del Sur, southern Philippines, the Philippine news service reported yesterday.

The armies were formed when the Christian settlers were forced to defend their property against the incursions of the Muslims. The Muslims on the other hand, look upon the Christian settlers as "land-grabbers" who are out to deprive them of their property. The "Barracudas" outnumber the "Ilagas" two to one and are equipped with modern arms.

Respecting foreign judgments

The High Court of Justice made absolute an order nisi of the nature of habeas corpus requiring the respondent to hand over his five-year-old son to the petitioner, the child's mother.

The petitioner and respondent were divorced in New York in 1969. Under the divorce judgment, custody of their two-year-old son was given to the petitioner, but the respondent was given the right to apply for a reverse of the custody order after six months if the circumstances warranted it. The divorce judgment allowed the father to spend time with his son outside the mother's home but forbade either parent to take the child out of the U.S. without the consent of the other parent.

In 1971, the respondent on the pretext of taking the child for a vacation, brought him to Israel. The petitioner eventually traced the child with the aid of Interpol and applied to the High Court of Justice for a habeas corpus order.

Mr. Heruti and Mr. L. Halmowitz appeared for the petitioner and Mr. E. Rotman and Mr. R. Rotman for the respondent.

Decision
Justice Sussman, who delivered the decision of the High Court, Justices Witkon and Cohen concurring, pointed out that the rule was established in H.C. 125/49 that once a foreign competent court has issued a custody judgment the courts of Israel will respect the judgment unless satisfied that the good of the child demands that the decision of the foreign court be overruled.

In the present case, he continued, the respondent had in fact argued that the good of the child demanded that he remain in Israel, where he had a good home, was loved and cared for by the respondent's second wife and had adjusted well to the kindergarten which he attended, whereas he had alleged the child's mother had married a Catholic, who did not treat the child well, and lived with her husband, her mother and a baby born from the second marriage, in a small apartment in a poor and crime-ridden district in Brooklyn. But, Justice Sussman held, while he did not for a moment cast any doubt on the respondent's statement that the child was well off in Israel, he failed to understand why the respondent had failed to get custody of the child between April 1970, when the plaintiff had remarried, and September 1971, when the child was taken unlawfully to Israel, in the light of the fact that he had been entitled to apply to the New York Court for reconsideration of the custody order.

As to the respondent's argument

In the Supreme Court sitting as High Court of Justice
Before the Deputy President (Justice Sussman), Justices Witkon and Cohen
Jane Falcon (Shohen), Petitioner, v. Theodore Shohen, Respondent
(H.C. 189-72)

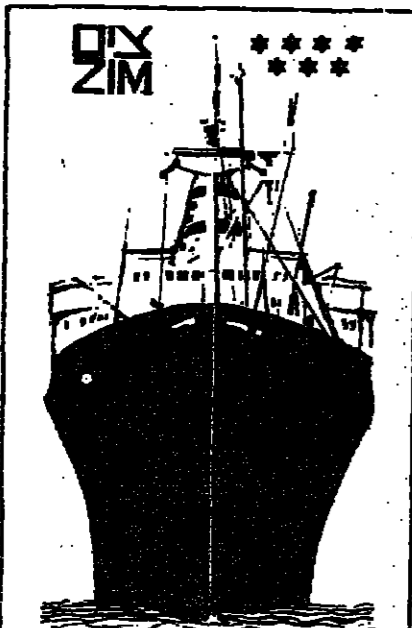

LAW REPORT
The Jerusalem Post
Edited by Doris Rankin
TUESDAY, JUNE 18, 1972

Child returned to custody of mother that the petitioner's marriage to a so black as to justify the High Court's repudiating a judgment of a competent foreign court. For, in the words of the late Justice Zmora (in H.C. 125/49), while every Jewish child who comes to Israel and is educated here is only to be welcomed with open arms, Israel cannot be allowed to serve as a refuge for persons who, in consequence of matrimonial disputes, smuggle their children out of a country contrary to the law of that country.

Order nisi made absolute and respondent ordered to hand the child over to the petitioner and to pay the petitioner's expenses, including a return ticket to Israel, the child's ticket to New York, and IL1,000 advocate's fees.

Decision given on May 18, 1972.

BATTLEFIELD TO BE PARK FOR THE BLIND

By ARNABAM RABINOVICH
Jerusalem Post Reporter
Blind Arabs and Jews, who had listened to the sounds of battle in Jerusalem five years ago from opposite sides of the city, met yesterday on a former battlefield between the Arab and Jewish sectors of the city to attend the dedication of a garden for the blind, the first in the Middle East.

A blind girl reads plaque in Braille at yesterday's dedication of garden for the blind in Abu Tor quarter of Jerusalem. At upper left is Mayor Teddy Kollek.

The six-dunam garden in Abu Tor is a gift of the Vienna Municipality to offer plants with various distinctive scents and textures which the blind can smell and feel. Descriptions will be provided by Braille plaques.
The blind will be able to listen to the sound of water splashing in fountains and the sound of their own footsteps on gravel paths. Donkeys, sheep and other animals will be available for blind children to pet.
According to Mayor Teddy Kollek, the Abu Tor site on the edge of former no-man's-land was deliberately chosen because it was equally accessible to both Arab and Jewish residents of the City. At the request of the Vienna, the site, between Eitzel and Ahmazzt streets, is within the "Day War boundaries of Israeli Jerusalem."
Vienna is providing the IL360,000 cost as well as the plans by Prof. Viktor Modhammer, which is based on Vienna's own garden for the blind, perhaps the best known in existence.
KOLLEK VISIT
Mr. Kollek noted that he had visited the garden a year and a half ago during his first visit to Vienna in 35 years. Accompanying him then was Vienna Mayor Felix Slavik, who attended yesterday's ceremony along with the Austrian Ambassador, Dr. Arthur Agstner, and several Vienna Municipal officials.
Mr. Kollek said that the development of a garden on a former battlefield for people who never fought was perhaps symbolic that we would succeed in living in peace in this city.
Mr. Slavik presented several volumes of fairy tales in Hebrew Braille.
Among those attending the ceremony was Mr. Subhi Dajani, the retired founder and headmaster of the 'Ala-ya school for blind Arab boys in al-Bireh near Ramallah.
Earlier in the day, Mr. Slavik participated in the groundbreaking ceremony for a home for the aged in the Matteredorf Quarter of Jerusalem, for which the Vienna Municipality is contributing IL2m. 20 per cent of the total cost. The home, which will also provide medical treatment for its 140 residents, will accommodate, among others, former Vienna residents now living here.

Wage talks move at snail's pace

Jerusalem Post Economic Correspondent
Negotiations for a wage agreement in the different economic branches are advancing at snail's pace. The old agreement expired last December — and each union is waiting to see what the others achieve.
Mr. Zalman Suzayeff, overall chairman of negotiations on behalf of the employers, is optimistic on the whole — provided the employers stand firm. "We made a lot of mistakes this time," he told The Jerusalem Post last week, "and shouldn't repeat them when biennial wage contracts come up for renewal in the future."
The first, he says, was the meeting called by Finance Minister Sapir at the end of 1971, when he (Sapir) proposed what turned out to be the "framework agreement." Says Mr. Suzayeff: "It was he who suggested the six per cent wage rise. It was not born out of our negotiations with the Histadrut. This benefit should have been won from us by the workers through collective bargaining. As to the bargaining begins when the unions already have that six per cent under their belt."
The lockout threat in the canning industry led straight to "Gola's" compromise. And that was no compromise, he observed. "It was a surrender on our part."
"Threatening a lockout is weakness, not strength. It means that individual employers are frightened to

Jewish film director here at Airport to be extended 'Honour system'

LOD AIRPORT. — A large group of immigrants from the U.S.S.R. arrived here yesterday aboard an El Al flight from Vienna.
The immigrants are from various cities. They were sent either to apartments assigned to them or to absorption centres and uplanim.
Among those sent to the uplanim in Beit Shemesh is a former Russian movie actor and director, Yulia Panitz. He told "Him" he had appeared in 80 movies and on the stage, and in recent years turned to directing. In April, when he applied for an exit permit, he was immediately fired from his job. But he received the permit shortly afterward. (11m)
Somebody doesn't like our stamp
Postal matter from Israel to Rumania bearing the "Let My People Go" stamp has been coming back during the past few days without having reached its destination, the Communications Ministry spokesman said yesterday in Jerusalem.
He added that no indication had been given as to why the letters are being returned.
Unterman refutes letter he won't run for Chief Rabbi
Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi Isser Yehuda Unterman told a radio reporter yesterday that he intended to stand in the Chief Rabbinate elections.
He said that the letter which his son had written to the Religious Affairs Minister earlier this year indicating that he would not stand did not bind him. Since the letter was written, he had been under great pressure from religious leaders in Israel and abroad, and had therefore decided to stand in the public interest and for the good of religion.
The Prime Minister is reportedly chagrined at Rabbi Unterman's about-face, and the Labour Party is once more considering the possibility of introducing legislation to limit the age of Chief Rabbis.

Gibor workers protest closure decision
TEL AVIV. — Workers of the Gibor textile dyeing plant in Beit Brak yesterday held a demonstration outside the company's offices here to protest against the management's decision to close the plant.
The secretary of the plant's works committee, Mr. Ezra Nakash, told "Him" that the 120 workers, out of work since last week, would also bring their wives and children to demonstrate if the management does not rescind its decision.
The Beit Brak Labour Council has opposed the closure, which the management says is due to a change in world fashion trends — women are no longer interested in dyed party-wear. Gibor has 11 other plants in Israel, including another dyeing plant in Kiryat Simons, which is also currently out of work.

Author Gershon Shofman dies in Gedera at 92

GERSHON SHOFMAN

TEL AVIV. — Gershon Shofman, one of Israel's prominent authors, died yesterday in Gedera at the age of 92. His funeral will take place today in Haifa, leaving Ramnam Hospital at noon.
He was a freeman of Haifa. Shofman, who was born in White Russia in 1880, began to write his stories in Hebrew at the age of 19. He participated with Itzik M. Brenner in publishing the "Hameror" paper in London.
He is survived by his wife, who is ailing, a son and a daughter and by grandchildren.
Moshe Kohn, Jerusalem Post Literary Editor, adds:
Gershon Shofman, master of the vignette, was referred to as the artist of the closing line. His stories, rarely more than about 1,000-1,500 words long, were described as "the realistic stories of a romantic writer." Containing his experiences and impressions of his childhood in White Russia and his life in Eretz Yisrael (he settled here in 1938), they are collected in five volumes (published by Dvir and Am Oved).
Two years ago, at a 90th birthday celebration at the Beit Hanassi, the then Chairman of the Hebrew Writers Association, poet Sh. Shalom, said that Shofman's great achievement lay in his having "liberated Hebrew prose from ornate, tortuous phrasings." Author Elaim Harsatz said that Shofman's great contribution was the fact that he had "injected into Hebrew literature the element of play that is in man's existence, thereby turning it into a normal literature."
Three years ago, when he was awarded the Irving and Bertha Neuman Literary Prize of New York University in a ceremony at the Hebrew University, he responded by reading a 90-second vignette port-

Danoch acquitted of threatening crime reporter

TEL AVIV. — Magistrate's Court Judge Boris Rappoport yesterday acquitted Shimon Danoch of charges of threatening to kill "Ha'aretz" reporter Ron Kislav in connection with the latter's series of articles on organized crime.
Nevertheless, the Judge ordered Danoch to post a IL5,000 bond to avoid committing any offence involving violence for one year.
The prosecution claimed that Danoch had entered the "Ha'aretz" offices in Tel Aviv on April 19 and threatened to kill Kislav if he didn't stop writing his crime series.
Defence Counsel Moshe Rom held that Danoch did not make any murder threats. Moreover, Kislav had linked Danoch's name with a murder case that was still sub judice. Danoch had every right, his lawyer claimed, to try to prevent the journalist from publishing the story.
Judge Rappoport, in his verdict, agreed with defence counsel, saying that whether or not Danoch had actually threatened Kislav with violence was immaterial, since the journalist was actually committing a breach of the libel law in printing his series of articles.
The Judge then proceeded to rebuke the defendant for threatening to take the law into his own hands. He advised the prosecution to appeal the verdict in a higher court to put its validity to the test.

Mapai ordered to pay journalist IL100 for libel

TEL AVIV. — A libel suit filed over five years ago by "Ha'aretz" journalist Yair Kotler against Mapai ended yesterday when the Magistrate's Court awarded Mr. Kotler IL100 token damages.
The suit arose over an article written by Kotler and published in "Ha'aretz" on December 7, 1966, which dealt with the physical fitness of the late Mayor Mordechai Namir to continue holding office.
Kotler sued for libel when Mapai published a press release accusing him of "mud-slinging." Mapai further accused him, he said, of belonging to the Rafi party and participating in that party's anti-Mapai campaign.
The respondents in the suit were Mapai, its spokesman, Avital Mosenzon, and Mrs. Golda Meir, then Mapai Secretary-General. At the plaintiff's request, Mrs. Meir's name was dropped from the suit after she became Prime Minister.
Judge Moses Duer ruled that Kotler had indeed been guilty of "slandering," but that the respondents had "reacted" in their counter-attack. Mapai's press release exceeded all reasonable limits and contained libellous elements, the judge said.

Ex-muckraker comes out on side of angels

TEL AVIV. — Knesset Member Shalom Cohen, who for years edited the scandal sheet "Ha'olam Hazeh", is backing a bill which will forbid the publication of the name of a suspect until the charges against him are presented.
Mr. Cohen told a press conference at Beit Sokolov yesterday that he was moved to propose the bill by the investigation of the Ian Asherov murder. Mr. Cohen said several suspects had been arrested on the basis of what police had claimed to be convincing evidence, but were later released with no charges being pressed. Untold harm is caused, he said, when the mass-media publicize their names.
According to the bill procedures against the suspect may be made public when he is remanded, with no name mentioned, and only after the charge sheet has been presented by the prosecution as well. Mr. Cohen added that "statistics show that 90 per cent of formal charges end in conviction."

Shraga Goren, co-op leader, buried
TEL AVIV. — Shraga Goren, one of the founders of the cooperative movement in Israel and a member of the First Knesset was buried at the Kiryat Shaul Cemetery yesterday.
Mr. Yitzhak Ben-Aharon, the Secretary-General of the Histadrut, eulogized Goren before the funeral left Histadrut headquarters in Tel Aviv.
Born Gorohovski in the Ukraine 75 years ago, Shraga Goren came to Palestine in 1921. He joined the first group of Jewish workers in building which later developed into Sotol Ezech, a company of which he was also the first managing director. He was also among the founders of the first public transport cooperatives.
He is survived by two daughters, one of whom is married to Tal-Aluf Gazit, the Coordinator of Administrated Territories, who recited kaddish at the graveside.

Conference opens on solutions to pollution
Jerusalem Post Reporter
TEL AVIV. — The International Conference on Engineering and Scientific Solutions of Pollution opened last night at the Sheraton Hotel here, with more than 400 participants from 17 countries.
An official delegation from France cancelled its participation shortly before it was due to arrive.
There will be 17 lecturers on practical solutions to pollution problems in every field, on an interdisciplinary level. These include: "The effects of air pollution vs. the effects of smoking, or is smoking a red herring?"; "Air pollution in Israel"; "The politics of pollution in the Communist world."
The Haifa Technion is host to the Conference.
Greeting the participants, Interior Minister Yosef Burg predicted that heavily industrialized sections of Tel Aviv will be thinned out and moved to the Negev. This would sharply reduce the concentration of air pollution, he said.

MARKET NARROWLY HIGHER

NEW YORK. — The Stock Market was narrowly higher in slow trading yesterday.
Brokers attribute the gain to selective buying following five straight days of declines in the Dow Jones Industrial Average last week. They also say a basically optimistic investor attitude about the Market outlook, based on economic gains, is overcoming some earlier uncertainties including social and economic policies of Sen. McGovern and soaring gold prices in Europe.
Number of shares traded amounted to 13,360,000. Declining issues led advancing issues 713 to 648. The DJIA was up 2.26 points, to closed at 936.71.

Trustee: BANK HAPOALIM B.M.

Mayor Abdul-Jawad Saleh refers to his notes during a meeting with Defence Minister Moshe Dayan in El-Bireh yesterday.

DAYAN:

Bulk of ex-W. Bankers can't return—yet

Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter... For the time being, Israel will not permit the return of the hundreds of thousands of West Bank residents who left the country before and during the Six Day War, Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said yesterday.

Mr. Dayan was replying to a demand made on this subject by Mayor Abdul-Jawad Saleh of El-Bireh, during the Minister's visit to the town yesterday.

During the meeting — which though generally cordial was punctuated by sharp exchanges — Mayor Saleh at one point said there would be hunger strikes and demonstrations unless Israel permitted more war-divided families to unite. He told the Defence Minister that the present quota for reunification of families split between the West Bank and Jordan was too low.

Mr. Dayan replied that he was not prepared to discuss the matter under threat. "If the residents of El-Bireh choose to protest in such a way, they, instead of meetings and discussions, paratroopers will be brought here to deal with the matter," Mr. Dayan warned.

At the same time, the Defence Minister said, he recognized the difficulty of the problem. In keeping with guidelines laid down by the Government, the reunion of as many families as possible would be permitted. He added that the Military Government would allow the return of former residents where humanitarian considerations were involved, as well as of those persons who could contribute to the economic development of the West Bank.

Mayor Saleh also asked that 500 dunams of El-Bireh land annexed to the Municipality of Jerusalem after the war be returned to his town. Mr. Dayan replied that the decision to sequester the land was taken by the Israeli Government and was irreversible.

Mr. Dayan and his aides gave positive replies to the Mayor's requests for assistance in the construction of a commercial centre, more welfare aid and reconsideration of previous decisions concerning the release of prisoners.

VISITS RAMALLAH... Mr. Dayan's visit to El-Bireh yesterday was preceded by a similar courtesy call to the newly-elected Mayor of Ramallah, Mr. Karim Khalaf, and the City Council.

Discussing a request by Ramallah (and other West Bank towns) to be allowed to receive money owed them by the Jordanian Government, the Minister stressed that officially the thing was out of the question, since the Jordanian Government's authority did not extend to the West Bank any longer. He added that "there is no such thing as getting money with no strings attached... isn't one government enough for you?"

However, Mr. Dayan stressed that West Bank municipalities could obtain financing for defined development purposes from any financial institution in the Arab world if they wished. But this was on condition it was done on a commercial, not political, basis, he said.

As his counterpart in El-Bireh, Mayor Khalaf raised a number of far-ranging issues, including tourism development, tax matters, the release of prisoners and the reunion of families. Mr. Dayan reiterated that if the West Bank towns would raise their municipal rates, the Military Government would contribute its share.

The Defence Minister also urged the two mayors to reconsider their decision to resign from the board of directors of the East Jerusalem Electric Corporation (which followed the corporation's agreeing to co-opt two representatives of the Jerusalem Municipality on the board). He warned them that if they failed to return, representatives of the Military Government would take their places and make decisions for them.

At the same time, the Defence Minister said, he recognized the difficulty of the problem. In keeping with guidelines laid down by the Government, the reunion of as many families as possible would be permitted. He added that the Military Government would allow the return of former residents where humanitarian considerations were involved, as well as of those persons who could contribute to the economic development of the West Bank.

Game injury held to be work accident

Certain recreation activities for workers are essential to their work, and hence they are entitled to compensation by National Insurance for accidents which occur during such activities.

The National Labour Court yesterday upheld a decision by the Jerusalem District Labour Court that a girl who injured her finger playing ball during her lunch break was entitled to compensation as though it were a work accident. The lower court decision was appealed by the National Insurance.

The girl, Rivka Siman, 19, worked eight hours a day on polishing semi-precious stones, in a sitting position with her back bent. She claimed that her ball-playing during lunch was necessary to relax the great tension she developed on the job.

The National Insurance, however, refused to recognize her claim, and she took the matter to court.

up in the U.S. The Israel Ambassador has to rally as best he can the maximum support for Israel over and beyond the exclusive Jewish support.

Every President, on making a positive decision, did so generally in opposition to the views of most of the experts responsible for foreign and security affairs. It is my view therefore, that we have to display gratitude to those who acted in support of Israel and not only spoke in Israel's support.

We must express thanks for words, too, but more than that it is important that there be an awareness among American politicians

Driving licences good for two years

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Starting in July, two-year drivers licences, costing IL50, will be available. Minister of Transport and Communications Shimon Peres said at a press conference in Jerusalem yesterday.

The new licences will have a detachable coupon to be mailed in case of change of address.

The notice for the annual car test will come with a list itemizing the car parts to be checked, so that drivers can prepare their vehicles properly, Mr. Peres announced. The telephone information service covering the entire range of questions connected with licensing will be expanded, with calls automatically recorded and answered the next day.

Switching to communications, Mr. Peres announced that since May 13 a regulation has been in force obliging contractors to install central telephone conduits in all new buildings. The conduits will be safer, avoid unsightly outside lines, and save money and trouble when telephones are ready to be installed later.

CLASSROOMS FOR ABU GHOSH

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter

The Knesset Education Committee yesterday decided that the Ministry of Education immediately build new classrooms — even temporary ones — in the village of Abu Ghosh, just outside Jerusalem.

The Committee learned that children at the local primary school were dispersed all over the hamlet in hired rooms. Some pupils were even being taught "under the shade of the trees" in the town.

In view of the severity of the situation, the Committee said that building should start before the coming school year.

Treasury to fight rise in car insurance

By AARON SITTNER, Jerusalem Post Reporter

The Treasury will resist a demand by insurance companies to raise car insurance premiums.

"Their case (for increased rates) has not been proved," Dr. Yaacov Pickler, Commissioner of the National Savings Authority and official in charge of insurance supervision, told The Jerusalem Post last night.

(On Sunday, Dr. Yehuda Gruengard, managing director of Migdal Binyan Insurance Company and chairman of the Insurance Company Association, announced that the companies intend to raise their premiums again.)

Last week the companies applied in writing to the National Savings

Authority for "permission" to raise their rates. With the present law admittedly weak in the area of rate control, Dr. Pickler promptly took the application up with top Treasury officials, and it was decided to ask the Commerce and Industry Minister's Price Review Committee to examine the request, to determine whether a rate increase would or would not be advisable at this time. As Dr. Pickler sees it, the argument that the companies lost IL30m. in automobile coverage business during 1971 does not show a true picture. That year's figures fall to reflect the premium income "in the pipeline" as a result of the two most recent rate increases — 35 per cent in May 1971 and another 15 per cent in January 1972.

High Court closes rabbinic elections issue

Jerusalem Post Staff

The High Court of Justice yesterday refused an application for an order absolute against the Government to make the appointments to the Chief Rabbinate Elections Issue — since the Cabinet on Sunday appointed its two representatives to the Election Committee and thereby complied with the terms of an order nisi issued against it last week.

The legal action was taken by the Young Guard of the National Religious Party to force the Government to make the appointments which had been delayed for several weeks. In the appointments made on Sunday, the NRG ministers in the Cabinet voted against the Alignment nominees — Rabbi Yehuda Shulman and Mr. Aharon Uzzan.

The National Religious Party Knesset faction yesterday decided that its Young Guard must not initiate such moves in the future. In a statement issued yesterday after the faction met, it was stressed that the party had not been informed about parliamentary and judicial initiatives taken by Mr. Ze'evulun Herzog and Dr. Yehuda Ben Meir last week. In future, the faction would have to debate and approve such moves in advance, the statement said.

Sartre feels Israelis have to serve in Army

Philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre believes that conscientious objector Gloria Neumann ought not to serve as an example to Israel youth. Israel is in danger of being wiped out, and the country's youth has to serve in the army, Sartre said.

According to yesterday's "Ma'ariv," he made the statement in elaboration of the letter he sent Gloria's mother. He was speaking to M. G. Ben-Gal.

At the same time, Sartre added, he wished to convey to the youth's mother his opinion that Gloria's refusal to serve should be exploited to pressure the Government into declaring that it is holding on to the administered areas only as a bargaining point — rather than continue with its present "ostrich-like policy."

SADEK LEAVES MOSCOW

MOSCOW — Soviet Defence Minister Andrei Grechko said in a speech reported here yesterday that his talks with Egyptian War Minister Mohammed Atmeb Sadek had promoted better mutual understanding and were "a new step in the consolidation of friendly relations between the armies of the two countries."

Grechko was speaking at a dinner given in honour of Sadek on Sunday night.

There has been no word here on whether the talks will lead to further Soviet arms supplies to Egypt, but Marshal Grechko said "the Arab peoples are not alone in their struggle."

Egyptian officials said the Soviet Defence Minister was the luncheon guest yesterday of Egyptian Ambassador Yehia Abdel Kader.

Sadek ended his five-day visit to Moscow yesterday and Tass later reported he had flown to the Crimean coast, probably for a short rest before returning to Egypt.

Most of Sadek's talks here were held with Grechko.

According to the Middle East News Agency, Sadek said Sunday night that Soviet arms would enable Egypt's forces to teach Israel a lesson.

Sadek reportedly made the statement at a dinner given him by Marshal Grechko. (Reuter, AP)

U.K. protests 'Libyan arms' for I.R.A.

BELFAST — British customs officials yesterday inspected a Libyan-registered tanker here as Britain issued a strong protest over a statement by the Libyan leader, Muammer Gaddafi, on Sunday that he had sent arms to the Irish Republican Army (I.R.A.). No arms were found on the oil tanker.

In London, Libyan Ambassador Khairy Mohammed was called to the Foreign Office to receive a strong oral protest from Mr. Joseph Godber, Deputy Foreign Minister, with special responsibilities for Middle Eastern affairs.

British officials here later said that they had no evidence of any Libyan arms being supplied to the I.R.A. (API, Reuter, INA)

Pornography warehouse raided

TEL AVIV — Acting on a tip-off, Tel Aviv police on Sunday discovered a secret warehouse containing tons of pornographic literature, it was learned here yesterday.

The raid, at 38 Rehov Hamatziv in the Montefiore Quarter, was part of a country-wide campaign to crack down on the sale of obscene literature. The police had to use several trucks to haul the material away.

No arrests have as yet been made.

Bar-Lev favours keeping price control

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter

Commerce and Industry Minister Haim Bar-Lev told the Knesset yesterday that as a result of inflationary pressures on the economy, he could not recommend that price control be dropped, even though the effectiveness of the present system was severely limited.

Presenting a review of his Ministry over the past year, the Minister added that "for one do not believe that price control can last forever. Apart from control on the price of essential and monopolistic services, the cost of most products will have to be determined one of these days by the normal process of supply and demand."

Mr. Bar-Lev said that the main problems facing industry were essentially a result of the rising cost of production. He warned that industrial development could only be maintained if all sectors of the economic spectrum display self-control.

If, however, workers, employers and the Government do not restrain their demands, the inflationary effects on the economy would "force us to take smaller steps in our march forward," he said.

A GOOD YEAR

Mr. Bar-Lev felt that 1971 had been a good year for industry. Production rose by 11.5 per cent over 1970, while the overall rise since 1967 has been in the neighbourhood of 80 per cent and totalled IL25,900m. last year.

What was even more impressive, he said, was the fact that exports had doubled in value since the Six Day War, and last year stood at $745m. Industrial exports had risen by 25 per cent last year alone, he said.

The number of workers in industry had grown by an estimated

Bank swindlers used 'mobile phone exchange'

RISHON LEZION. — The men who perpetrated the telephone swindle against the Shikun Mirasah Bank Leumi branch here earlier this month used a car as their "mobile telephone exchange," the police said yesterday.

One of the swindlers cashed a series of bad checks in Tel Aviv branches of the bank while another intercepted the Rishon bank's phone calls, impersonated the bank manager and "confirmed" that there were funds to cover the checks. The stolen sums amounted to IL140,000.

One Sunday, police investigators found the place, near the bank, where the telephone line had been cut — and apparently spliced back after the job was done. It is presumed that the bogus "bank manager" had connected his own telephone instrument into the line at that point and then sat in his parked car intercepting the phone calls. The police have put together an identikit of the swindler who cashed the checks. So far no arrests have been made.

Deputy mayors of Haifa named

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA — The City Executive yesterday decided to appoint Messrs. Avraham Sakhnia and Yehoram Zeisel as deputies to Mayor Moshe Fleiman. In the event of Mr. Fleiman's absence, Mr. Zeisel is to be the first to act as Mayor.

The appointments, which will be brought to the city council for approval, were made following the quarrel between the two during the Mayor's recent illness. Both Mr. Zeisel, who is a member of the ex-Mapa wing of the Labour Party, and Mr. Sakhnia, a former Ashdud Ha'arava man, claimed the acting post for themselves. This led to some embarrassing scenes, and the party recently decided to make their duties official. The City Executive also approved the contract with the hotelier Haim Schiff, for the establishment of a 600-room hotel in the Ramat Hadar quarter, half way up Mt. Carmel. The hotel will be built on a 21 dunam site.

Mr. Schiff owns the President, Diplomat, and Or Gil Hotels in Jerusalem.

Jewish hotel slated for Kiryat Arba

The first Jewish-owned hotel in the West Bank will be erected in Kiryat Arba, Tourism Minister Moshe Kol announces.

The announcement came following a meeting of the Minister with Rabbi Moshe Levinger and other representatives of the Kiryat Arba settlers, and with the Hebron administrator for the West Bank Military Government, Mr. Kol was on a tour of Hebron as guest of O/C Central Command, Aluf Rehavim Ze'ev.

The proposed hotel will have 80 rooms and a top-grade restaurant. The number of rooms will be increased if the occupancy rate proves to be high.
